

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A memory apparatus is configured by obtaining test information for each of group of memory locations within the memory apparatus, compressing the test information to produced compressed test information and, based on the compressed test information, replacing a group of redundant memory circuits respectively associated with the group of memory locations.